Editorial

An editorial should comment on current affairs affecting the readers of the magazine. So, what momentous events have happened recently? Should I write about the general election? The football? Wimbledon? I've decided not to include any of these in my write-up.

I've quietly criticised one particular local magazine for including political views, so I shan't include the election results. As to the football - the less said the better. As to the tennis - it looks like the 'old guard' is finally being replaced by younger champions. If you're a labour voter with a Spanish background, July must have been a pretty happy month.

My favourite activity in July is to watch the Tour de France on the television. If ever there was a sport designed for TV, cycling must be near the top of the list.

If you go to France and stand by the road to watch the Tour, the view you have of the riders lasts for just a few moments. If you're really committed to the sport, you'll then travel a hundred miles or so, for a view of the next day's racing. There, once again, you'll catch a fleeting glimpse of the riders as they fly past once again. Watching on TV is much more civilised.

There are 21 days of racing and the riders pedal for 3,500km (2,174 miles). There are flat, sprint stages - where the heavyweight riders make a mad dash to the final line. There are mountain stages - where the lightweight riders pedal at speed up ridiculous inclines to the top. There are a couple of time trials, where the riders are alone against the clock.

There are three main competitions within the Tour: the Green Jersey (best sprinter), the Polkadot Jersey (best mountain climber) and the G.C. Yellow Jersey (General Classification - fastest over all types of road).

As I write, the leader of the G.C. - the wearer of the Yellow Jersey - is Tadej Pogacar from Slovenia. Second is Jonas Vingegaard from Denmark. Third is Remco Evenepoel from Belgium. The wearer of the Green Jersey is Biniam Girmay of Eritrea.

So, although I might become a couch potato in July each year, my knowledge of world geography is improving.

Fancy dress at the WI

The pictures below were taken at the WI June Summer bash, so I thought you might like to see some “Frenchified” members who dressed up for the occasion, as the theme was the 2024 Paris Olympics.

Unfortunately, no one was brave enough to wear cycling gear!

Settle Plant Pot Festival

Over the last few years, I have taken my grandchildren to do the Settle Plant Pot Festival trail. If you have young children or grandchildren, I am sure they will enjoy looking at all the interesting characters made from plant pots. There are lots of animals and people.

This year I particularly liked the WI figure (assume sponsored by Settle WI), which shows a lady with a tray of cakes with a caption something like "WI ladies make considerably bigger buns". This is situated near the post office in front of what used to be the old police station. The other one I liked was two characters sitting on a bench in the square – one looking like a Yorkshireman and one a Frenchman. Perhaps they are discussing the Euro football championship outcome or maybe the Olympic games recently held in Paris, whatever their discussion - they took my fancy.

Why not tell us which ones you enjoyed the most.

A “STEEP” LEARNING CURVE

At the top of our house is our attic, which was dingy and really quite small
But we were in need of an extra bedroom and for this, it was no good at all!

So we remedied this with a ‘dormer’ took out railings, replaced with a wall.
Put in some central heating
it was bright now and feeling much warmer.

Now, when we removed those railings,
we never gave it a thought that this was going to be one of our failings when the new bed and mattress were bought.

The bed was a ‘doddle’, it arrived all in bits not a problem to get up the stairs, but the mattress, well that’s another matter
no way could we get it up there.

The attic door was far too narrow, the stairs were far too steep,
We shoved and pushed; that mattress shoved back,
no way was the flaming thing being rushed,
on what were we going to sleep?

So off came the door and all the surrounds and we shoved and we pushed some more.
That mattress resisted but with small leaps and bounds
it sprung onto the attic floor.

Blood, sweat and tears were shed that day,
but a valuable lesson was learned.....
If the attic you’re re-designing has railings
we can now tell you what they are for.
They’re to manoeuvre your new mattress over so you don’t have to dismantle the door!!

Haw Lane views from years gone by

Haw Lane in 1938. To the left is Mrs Syers, a resident of Hellifield for many years.

The ladies in this photograph above from 1938 are sitting on a seat on the bankside of Haw Lane just up from the railway crossing. Looking towards the camera, the view beyond is represented in the photograph at the top of the next page. This photograph - from the late 1960's - looks towards the railway, and the village below shows a scene which was to change little in the years since 1938. The main change would have been the demolition of the old Station House and associated railway buildings in the early 1970's. This was the site of Hellifield's original station which was replaced in importance when the new station was constructed by the Midland Railway and was opened for use on the 1st June 1880. The main difference from the 1960's view and the same view today, is the absence of houses on the field to the right of Haw Grove, and various Auction Mart buildings which are also seen to the right of the photograph.

Note the well cut grass and the absence of today's overgrowth of hedges which feature in the top photograph. The seat the ladies are sitting on is (as far as I'm aware) still in situ, but is now hidden and, no doubt, quietly rotting away amongst all the bushes and undergrowth which has appeared over the last 30 years. I say the last 30 years because I distinctly remember sitting on it myself back in the early 1990's. Note the condition of the lane itself compared to today's rough and stony surface.

In the photograph at the bottom of the next page, new houses have been built from the late 1990's, now covering this area. Originally this area contained numerous sidings, engine shed, turntable and cattedocks. In the far top right of the photo the group of buildings represent John Winders farm. The caravans and lodges of the Gallaber we know today were still many years in the future.

Above: The houses built by the council in the 1920's, with its large patch of greenery in the middle. Not many cars in this 1960's photo. The field in the rear was for many years used as the football / cricket pitch and gala field.

Report from Hellifield Mothers' Union

At our July meeting, Sheila welcomed both members and visitors and lit a candle in memory of Barbara Wright, one of our members whose funeral was held recently. Sheila led us in prayer, and then updated us on the work of Mothers' Union in the Diocese.

Our guest speaker was Roy Porter, a well-respected butcher from Chatburn, who shared his experiences of times past, and how he became involved in Public Speaking. It triggered so many memories for us all of trips to the butchers, cuts of meat that were popular when we were younger, along with lots of anecdotes that made us laugh. Roy very kindly treated us to his special pork pies with our cup of tea, and Sheila provided a tray of her delicious biscuits as usual. We all enjoyed an uplifting and delightful afternoon.

Please come and join us on the first Wednesday in September, 2pm at St. Aidan's Church. There is no meeting in August.

North Craven Flower Club

Someone asked me recently, how do you make flowers last once bought/picked. The difficulty is that different flowers need different things and flowers in the garden have an optimum time for picking to make them last the longest. Generally, all flowers last best in water rather than oasis. Also changing the water as often as you can, recommended to do it every day, makes a big difference. Strip the stems so that no leaves are in the water. Cut about half an inch from each stem before adding them to your arrangement.

Below are some tips given by Judith Blacklock who is a lecturer, demonstrator and teacher worldwide. She has published several books and is a past editor of the Flower Arranger magazine.

1. Leaves should be healthy and not yellow.
2. Loose pollen on the petals is an indication that the flowers are nearing their end.
3. Some flowers naturally live longer when cut such as carnations and chrysanthemums. Iris, sweet peas and stocks will not last as long.
4. Flowers that are scented, tend to not last as long.

5. Flowers from bulbs such as daffodils, anemones and tulips last longer in shallow not deep water.

Looking at some flowers that are in season now and what to do to make them last longer.

- Agapanthus – only buy stems where there are only a few flowers open on each stem.
- Lady's Mantle (Alchemilla mollis) – Check that flowers are not too tight, as once cut they might not fully open.
- Alstroemeria – Buy stems that have at least one bud that has already opened. The leaves should be green and not yellow.
- Anthurium – Avoid touching the wax like spathes. The Spadix should be more white than yellow. It gets darker with age.
- Astrantia – The flowers will wilt if the stem has been cut when the flowers are immature. The flowers should be open and the stems strong.
- Antirrhinum (snapdragon) – Don't purchase/cut flower stems that are bent as they will not straighten. There should be a good show of flowers at the bottom of the stem that are fresh and not wilting.

- Chrysanthemum – Check for browning in the centre of the flower and they shouldn't have released any of their yellow pollen.
- Dahlia – Check that the outer petals are firm and that the petals at the centre of the flower are still tight.
- Delphiniums – Foliage shouldn't be damaged and the flowers at the bottom of the stem should be fresh and not wilted.
- Gladiolus – Remove the tips as these will not open and removing them stimulates the buds further down the stem to open.
- Helianthus (Sunflowers) – Avoid buying flowers that have loose pollen at the centre as they won't last. Retain one or two leaves near the head to pull water up the stems more easily.
- Roses – There should be no browning on the petals, as this is a sign of age. Leave some leaves near the flower as again this helps to draw up water. If you pick too tightly closed buds in your garden, they are unlikely to open so pick flowers that have already started to open. If fully open, they won't last that long.

I hope this is helpful although it's only a few of the flowers that are in season now.

There will be no meeting in August and our meetings for the rest of the year are as follows:

12th September: Michelle Hunter - Back to the Drawing Board

10th October: A Harvest Basket - Your chance to be creative. Provide your own basket and flowers.

7th November: AGM

14th November: Open Meeting at Gargrave, Nick Grounds - The Apple Tree

12th December: Catharine Baines - Christmas Sparkle

The Raffle

Numbers are called, tickets checked

Eyes aglow, then hopes are wrecked

A Methodist won the sparkling wine

(If I'd got here sooner, it might have been mine!)

Mr. Smith got some ladies scent

Mrs. Brown got gloves for a gent

That lady who's been on a diet

Has won some  chocolate (I bet she'll try it)

The diabetic chap has won a cake

No good to him, for heaven's sake!

A boy of nine's won a bright pink purse

(But not the gin, which would have been worse)

The very last ticket has been pulled out

I'm sure it's mine - there is no doubt

The room is silent, the prize is great

All we can do is sit and wait!

The name is called - a complete stranger

His life is surely now in danger

He takes his prize - well what a cheek!

I'll have to try again, next week

Delivering the evening news (1970s style!)

In the early 1970s, before the advent of the internet and 24-hour TV news, evening editions of local newspapers were a popular way for people to keep up to date with happenings on a local and national basis. Two editions were available to the folks of Hellifield in those days, these were the Bradford Telegraph and Argus and the Yorkshire Evening Post, both of which were delivered around the village by myself after my school day had ended.

In those days the papers were delivered from the printers to Skipton bus station and then would be sorted on to the various local buses heading up to the dales. The papers for Hellifield would be loaded onto our local bus which, at that time, was operated by the Pennine motor company of Gargrave on its route from Skipton to Ingletton. (Pennine buses ceased to operate in 2014) and collected at the appointed stops by the local paper lads. The newspapers, wrapped in brown paper and tied with string would be stowed on the overhead luggage racks on these vehicles. I must have annoyed many passengers as I attempted to pull out each parcel from the rack to read the handwritten label until I found the correct one, in the process often showering the unfortunate passengers sat beneath with rainwater or snow from my anorak if it was an inclement night. Pennine buses carried quite a few parcels in those days, I remember boxes of auto parts bound for Ellis's garage in Settle and animal medicines for the vets also in Settle, to name but two. The bus stop in the village at this time was the double streetlamp located in the middle of the junction of Gisburn

This snapshot of Main Road, possibly from the 1980's, shows the shop and bank. Also note there was no subway under the railway line, although the bridge has had part of its deck removed - reducing it to two tracks rather than the four it had originally carried.

road and the A65, in later years the stop was moved further down by the old smithy. The Pennine drivers were always a cheery and good-natured bunch and some of them would sort the papers into the order of stops and have them ready to collect by the bus door.

With the papers collected it was on to Preston's our local newsagent's shop which was located on main road next door to Barclays bank (now the Little Beauty room). Once at the shop I would sort the papers into my order of delivery. There were so many papers that I couldn't fit them all into my bag for one trip so I sorted them into two lots, dividing the village in half using the railway bridge over the main road as my dividing line. Once sorted, it was on my bike and away. I could usually cover each half of the village in little over half an hour in good weather but in winter it would sometimes take a lot longer as streets such as Midland Terrace and Brook Street could be quite treacherous for a bike in snowy

Pennine

Please note all Pennine bus services will cease to operate on Friday 16th May 2014.

This includes service 580 from Skipton to Giggleswick and 210 to Malham.

The company will cease trading due to free travel payments from North Yorkshire County Council being reduced by 20% and competition between Skipton and Barnoldswick.

and dark conditions.

The photo on the left shows me on my bike ready to go and meet the 5pm bus. It was taken at the rear of our cottage on Bacon Terrace.

I remember this bike very well, it was a Raleigh "Wayfarer" with royal blue paintwork and a single speed gear and was the first brand new bike I ever had.

Previously, my bikes were assembled by my dad in his shed from his stockpile of old parts. I remember I took my cycling proficiency test at Hellifield primary school on a dad-built bike that utilised a girl's frame! Despite this and with the help of PC Peacock, who was one of our local policemen, I passed the test and I've still got the certificate and badge to prove it!

Village Hall (Institute) news

I was recently chatting sociably about ways of the world to a speaker who had come along to give a talk to one of our regular groups that meet in the village hall. I felt an inner glow and brimmed over with pride when he said that his village hall was nowhere near as good as ours (he did come from Lancashire!). He was referring to the layout and standard of the building and the range of events we hold. He had no idea I was a trustee so I believe his comments were genuine.

At the time there was a Mothers' Union meeting taking place in our newly refurbished Yorke Room and raucous laughter could be heard from the main hall where several people were enjoying a weekly HelliGames session.

We are delighted that the use of the rooms has expanded over recent years. Ken and Heather, our booking secretaries have quite a job on their hands to make sure it all runs smoothly. There is some jiggling required on occasions.

Most of our regular groups such as table tennis, badminton, HelliGames, HelliArts, HelliScribes, HelliCrafts, HelliReaders – I think there might be a theme here - are 'drop-in' and you don't have to be a member.

You can also book the village hall for a private party or for a coffee morning to raise funds for a charitable cause. Contact details for all activities that take place in the Village Hall, along with others in different venues, are listed in the Events section at the back of the magazine.

Hellifield is a very special place with a strong sense of community and along with my fellow trustees, we will do our best to make sure the residents of Hellifield are proud of their village hall and enjoy using it as much as possible.

WI August & September meetings

In July we welcomed Helen Bower for a talk on working with glass. Helen gave us a very interesting evening and many thanks go to her for coming all the way from York. Thanks also go to the extra visitors who came along to support both the WI and Helen.

In August we welcome back Yvonne Pinder. Yvonne has been a couple of times previously to Hellifield WI and her evenings are always entertaining, whether it be Pinny's Pots, Banjos or Adventure on Wheels.

September brings members of the Guide Dogs for the Blind charity to Hellifield with speakers accompanied by two four-legged friends, so even if you are not interested in WI, please come along and support this very special charity. I know there are lots of dog lovers in Hellifield, so why not come and see these extraordinary animals who do such a crucial job for blind and partially sighted people. Money raised helps pay for the puppies' training and upkeep.

As always visitors (male or female) are welcome for a small donation of £4, which includes light refreshments,

We are still looking for new members, so if you are new to the village, or are wanting something extra to do, why not give us a try. We promise not to get you to be part of the committee or ask you to organise anything – we would just like your company and think we provide interesting topics which are different each month. Membership costs are on a sliding scale, so joining part way through the year won't cost you very much, and you are welcome to come as a guest to see if you like us first. Our August meeting is at 7.15pm on the 15th and our September meeting is on the 19th at the same time. Look forward to seeing you soon.

Carol – Joint Secretary

View from the Vicarage

A slightly briefer offering from me in these late-summer months. I hope our readers have enjoyed any holidays they've been having. Mercifully our return to a lovely and quiet part of South Devon in late June was marked with sunshine and a relatively stress-free journey (although six and a half hours' driving isn't exactly relaxing under any circumstances). I couldn't help a smile of ironic amusement as, having seen pleasant blue skies most of the way north on our return, we ran into grey cloud and cold rain the moment we passed the M62 at Warrington. What's that quite untrue saying about it being "grim up north"?!

As I said last time out, please do spare a prayer- if that's something you do- for our new Parliament and especially those entrusted with government. No-one really needs the local vicar to remind them of the challenges facing us as a nation and in the wider world, and our politicians' ability to deal well with those challenges isn't automatically strengthened by having a big parliamentary majority.

Our prayer continues every week at St Aidan's that those who govern us might be moved to seek the ways of justice and peace and building up the common good.

And finally, perhaps I can add my very best wishes to the two couples being married at St Aidan's in August. For Kenzie and Lewis, and Hannah and James, their wedding days will hopefully be special and provide lifelong joyful memories, and it will be very good- at a time when there are so many alternative "venues" at which to perform the legal ceremony of marriage - that our parish church can once more fulfil one of its most ancient and important functions.

A poem for the young at heart

I get up in the morning
And sit and scratch my head
And if everything's still aching
I know that I'm not dead.

I'm used to my arthritis
To my kidneys I'm resigned
I can manage my bi-focals
But how I miss my mind.

Sometimes I can't remember
When standing by the stair
If I'm going up for things
Or just come down from there.

When I stand before the fridge
My mind is full of doubt
Have I just put some food away
Or come to take it out?

If I go into another room
And when I get there ... what?
Why have I really come here?
Already I've forgot.

I finally reach the postbox
When a thought comes in my head
Do I put it through the slot there
Or open it ... instead?

Just kidding (somewhat)

The Problem Page

The Problem Page returns to the magazine after a long pause. It's not that people haven't had any problems, it's just that they were so embarrassing, they couldn't be shared within a small, village community. So, here are just a few that can be viewed. Needless to say, it would be appreciated by the Editor if readers didn't try to identify those who have been brave enough to tell everyone their difficulties.

Mr G 'somewhere near the railway station'

It is true that having a pet can make you happy. But it's unlikely that your neighbour's cat is pooing on your vegetables just for the enjoyment of its owner. Putting up some sort of wire cage might be a good idea. Around the vegetables, not the cat. Or your neighbour.

Ms L of Long Preston

The result of the General Election was due to votes cast across the country, not just because of the poster your neighbour put up in his bedroom window. He's not that influential.

Mrs D of Park Avenue

Yes, Mrs D, having to take a fortnight off work with a 'bad back' is very bad news and I sympathise with your problem. Bad backs are complicated and can be a long-term issue. However, as your 'bad back' seems to coincide with the Wimbledon fortnight each year, it seems you have it under control.

Mr T of Halton West

I'm sure you are right in saying that public transport links to Halton West are poor, or even non-existent. That doesn't mean you can tell the driver of the Settle to Skipton bus to take you home after an afternoon's drinking in the Golden Lion.

G of Coniston Cold

I'm not sure whether to address this to 'Mr G' of Coniston Cold, or 'Ms G'. Either way, it's not a good idea to spy on your neighbours or take photos of their washing line. If their noisy washing machine is spoiling your favourite TV program, then just tell them. Timing their spin cycle and calculating the length of time it takes their washing to dry isn't getting you anywhere.

Mrs K of Hammerton Drive

Complaining about the building of new houses in the village doesn't seem fair coming from someone living in Hammerton Drive. Remember, your house was once a 'new build'.

Miss B of Gisburn Road

Your boyfriend is not alone. Many of his friends are also deeply depressed. They have sat, glued to the television, watching hour after hour of football. They have sung 'It's coming home' until they can sing no more. They have had one, single topic of conversation for weeks. They have suffered the stress and anxiety of waiting for an equalizer until the second minute of extra time. They all thought it could be done. And now it's over.

Be nice to him, but don't say the words 'England manager'.

John Cuthbert - Editor

June's village walk around Lonsdale

June's walk saw 12 Helliwalkers walk from the small village of Thornton in Lonsdale, over a couple of fields and into Ingleton below the viaduct before heading north to Thornton Hall.

We noticed signposted walking trails which are 'The Westhouse Walks' within the Parish of Thornton in Lonsdale – but we didn't need those as we had a 7-mile walk planned out.

What a fantastic area to explore – we visited West View, Cowgill Farm, Burnt House farm, Edith's Wood, and Burton in Lonsdale – called "the first and last village in Yorkshire" because it's right on the edge of Lancashire and Cumbria.

Our lunch spot was shared with a field of cows / one bull – which couldn't decide whether to meander towards their own lunch just dropped off at the top end of the field, or whether to share ours. I managed to sit behind Robert, John, and Roberta, who I knew would know how to handle the cattle should the need arise. But it didn't – they were very friendly.

The walk was delightful in many respects – the varying views of Ingleborough, the sunshine, ice creams from Country Harvest and of course the company of fellow walking friends from in and around Hellifield and the laughs and chit chat we had along the way.

The next village walks are 18 August and 15 September (the 3rd Sunday of the month).

If you would like to join us, please do! If you email rebgooch@gmail.com or text / call Rebecca on 07443 493169, I will send out more information about each walk a week or so in advance.

Rebecca Gooch

It's that time of year again!

Friends of Hellifield Magazine I am afraid for those of you who usually contribute around August time, I will be chasing your subscription. As always, there is no compulsion to renew your subscription, but if you feel you can afford to support us again with a £5 donation, the Hellifield Herald Team would be very grateful, as along with advertising revenue and grants, this helps cover the printing costs.

Those of you who have kindly joined recently will be approached again around the time you first joined, so please ignore this request.

There will be a coffee morning in August in aid of the Hellifield Herald and you can renew your subscription then, or you can ring me up and I will be happy to collect it (07855 191927).

We really do appreciate all the support we get from Hellifield residents and beyond, whether it be financially or articles or adverts. It is your magazine, and we hope we can continue to produce it for the foreseeable future and that you continue to enjoy the contents.

Many thanks in anticipation.

Craft Group

Our July meeting because of the elections had to have a change of venue. We were lucky to spend a lovely afternoon at Aileen's home. I think Bailey, the dog, was very confused as to what all these women were up to.

We were a smaller group, as some of our regular members had other commitments. As we have said before this is a drop in, as and when you can make it. It was lovely to welcome a new member, Sue. I always find it interesting that when we do get new members they seem to inspire us to try a new craft.

After a lot of discussions, we decided it might be nice to do something, as a group, for the village, therefore some of us are looking at making some poppies, hopefully to be ready to be displayed for Remembrance Day. If anyone doesn't want to join the group but would like to knit or crochet poppies they would be very gratefully received or even better still come and join us.
